INTRODUCTION.

---

THE collecting of ancient coins is at present more ardently followed than at any previous period. To meet the wants of those who have only commenced the pursuit, the present work has been undertaken. It is not intended for the experienced numismatist, but for the beginner; being a brief outline of the various series of the coins of the Roman empire, illustrated by the excellent plates formerly in the descriptive Catalogue of Roman Coins, in two volumes, 8vo., 1834.

The coins of the Roman empire are the most interesting of the classical series. They are the history of the civilised world during several centuries. No remains of antiquity can vie in importance with them: they are the facts of the period, which have escaped the injury of time and the destruction of the barbarian; monuments of history, as well as the best specimens of art. Unlike MSS., they have suffered no interpolations; or architectural buildings, which have undergone so many alterations to adapt them to the various uses to which they have been turned; or to the great uncertainty, both in date and application, which attaches to other remains of antiquity. Another important advantage is attached to coins, that collectors can have a connected series of the various periods of history conveniently placed in a cabinet for reference, which may be purchased for a reasonable price if the rare pieces are omitted.

The description as well as the historical notes on the coins of each series are brief; in fact, a good outline only has been attempted. To have given a full account of all the coins known would have filled many volumes. The most complete and best work on Roman coins is H. Cohen's "Médailles Consulaires," Paris, 1857, 4to.; and "Médailles Impériales," six volumes 8vo., by the same author, who has described every type known, except the colonial and Greek imperial coins, which is still a desideratum.

The earliest Roman coins in brass were cast; the marks of the mould on the edges may be distinctly seen, as well as the place where the fused metal has been run into the mould, and on the opposite side from which the metal has run into the other moulds, many having been cast at once. The As libralis and its multiples and divisions are of this class. When the weight of the As was reduced, the blanks of the coins were cast as before, but they were afterwards struck on the anvil with the dies. After this period all Roman coins were struck, excepting some which were issued in the colonies and provinces. There are, however, a large number of cast coins of the time of Severus, which have caused much controversy amongst antiquaries, some maintaining they were the work of forgers, whilst others consider them to have been made by authority to meet pressing wants. In Camden's "Britannia" is an account of the discovery of a large number of Roman coin moulds, made of clay, at Lingwell Gate, near Wakefield, in 1697. In 1820, a further considerable number of moulds were found at the same place, since then numbers of them have been turned up by the plough. In the "Archæologia," vol. xiv., page 99, there is an account of a similar and extensive discovery of moulds at Edington, in Somersetshire. They have also been found on the Continent in similar large numbers. The moulds are made of unbaked clay, with a notch cut at the side, so as to allow the metal to run into it. A number of them were placed one on the other, they were then coated over with clay, having on the top a funnel of the same material, down which the metal was poured, thus producing a good many casts at once. The reverse of each mould answers to the obverse of the last; those placed at the bottom and top have impressions on one side only, and are thicker than the others. The specimens engraved on Plate I., Nos. 4, 5, 6, and 7, are of this kind, though the artist has not shown the notch at the side sufficiently well. They nearly all belong to one period, Severus, Julia Domna, Caracalla, Plautilla, Geta, Macrinus, Elagabalus, Julia Mæsa, Alexander, Julia Mamæa, and a few others. From the large quantity of these moulds having been found in such very distant places, it is reasonable to suppose that they were used by authority, to meet pressing wants in the distant provinces, as they are always found in the neighbourhood of Roman camps. The disturbed state of Britain, during the reign of Severus, would necessitate a large supply of money. The insurrection of the Brigantes, the bravest of the native tribes, who lived in the very district where the Lingwell Gate moulds were found, explains sufficiently the choice of that place for the establishment of an authorised mint, though for the production of a debased currency. It is very unlikely they were the work of a forger; he most certainly would never have so carelessly preserved so many memorials of his villainy.

The instrument, Plate I., No. 1, in bronze, is in the French collection in Paris; it has been used for striking the small brass coins of the Emperor Constans. Though much oxidised, the letters . . . STANS are perceptible on the face of the die, which is shown on the same plate, No. 2, as well as the reverse die, No. 3.

C for Common; S, Scarce; R 1 to 8, for the First degree of Rarity to the Eighth].

THE AS LIBRALIS,

ITS MULTIPLES AND DIVISIONS.

THESE ponderous coins, which are of the earliest date and cast, though of such inconvenient size, are of good workmanship. They do not appear to have been adjusted to any fixed standard; the As weighs about one pound, some of the Quadrusses about five pounds, whilst the Decussis does not weigh as much as the latter.

It is unnecessary to make another division of the As and its divisions, after the reduction of the weight of the former to two, one, and half an ounce. These are struck coins, without the names of families, but have ROMA on them, which is wanting on the cast coins.

THE DECUSSIS, OR PIECE OF TEN ASSES.

1. O.—Horned head of Rome to the right; behind is X for the value.
- R.*—A prow of a ship to the left; above it the numeral X.

THE QUADRUSSIS, OR PIECE OF FOUR ASSES.

2. These are of square shape, and do not belong to Rome, but to some neighbouring state.

THE TRIPONTIUS, OR PIECE OF THREE ASSES.

3. These are similar in type to the Decussis, except the mark of value, III.

THE DUPONDIIUS, OR PIECE OF TWO ASSES.

4. Same type as the last, except the value II.

THE AS.

5. O.—Head of Janus. I below for the value. Plate II. No. 1.
R.—A prow of a ship to the right. I for the value.

SEMIS, OR HALF AS.

6. O.—Laureated head of Jupiter to the left. S the initial of Semis.
R.—A prow of a ship to the right.
 7. O.—A pig standing. S (inverted) for the value. Plate II. No. 2.
R.—A vase with two small handles.

QUINCUNX, OR FIVE OUNCES.

No Roman Quincunx is known, the following belongs to some adjoining state.

8. O.—A cross, with L in one angle, and ● ● ● ● ●, for five ounces, in another.
R.—A cross. Plate II. No. 3.

TRIENS, OR FOUR OUNCES.

9. O.—Horned head of Minerva to the left. ● ● ● ● the mark of value.
R.—A prow to the right.
 10. O.—A thunderbolt, and ● ● ● ● for four ounces.
R.—A dolphin, strigil, and ● ● ● ●. Plate II. No. 4.

QUADRANS, OR THREE OUNCES.

11. O.—Head of Hercules covered with the lion's skin. ● ● ● for the value.
R.—Prow of a ship. ● ● ● for the value.
 12. O.—Two grains of barley, and ● ● ●.
R.—An open hand, strigil, and ● ● ●. Plate II. No. 5.

SEXTANS, OR TWO OUNCES.

13. O.—Head of Mercury, covered with the petasus. ● ● for the value.
R.—Prow of a ship. ● ● for the value.

A SEXTANS of Volaterra, a neighbouring state.

14. O.—Head of Janus.
R.—FELRODI. and ● ●. Plate II. No. 7.

UNCIA, THE TWELFTH PART OF AN AS.

15. O.—Helmed head of Rome. ● for the value.
R.—Prow of a ship. ● for the value.
16. O.—Within a pentagon. ● for the value.
R.—A strigil and ●. Plate II. No. 6.

Nos. 1 and 2 are of the extremest rarity, and in good condition would bring a large price; 3 and 4 are very rare; 5 to 16 are scarce, and may be bought from five to thirty shillings each, according to the size and condition.

CAMPANIAN COINS.

Inscribed ROMA ROMANORUM. These are supposed to have been struck at Capua, which was conquered by the Romans, B.C. 210. They are in gold, electrum, silver, and brass, of fine Greek art, and value, of various sizes. Some of the types are borrowed from the Roman series, generally they are independent of them.

GOLD.

1. O.—Helmed head of Mars. ΨX, for 60 sesterces, the value.
R.—ROMA. An eagle on a thunderbolt. (Plate IV. No. 5.)
2. Similar to the last, except XXXX for the value, 40 sesterces.
3. Similar, except XX, for 20 sesterces. (Plate IV. No. 6.)

4. O.—Head of Janus.

R.—ROMA. A soldier kneeling, holding a sow, which is touched by the spears of two soldiers standing. This has been attributed to the Veturia family, and is of a similar design to the coins of the Marsian League.

5. Similar, of the size of a quinarius.

ELECTRUM.

O.—Head of Janus.

R.—Jupiter and Victory in a quadriga.

SILVER.

1. O.—Head of Janus. (Plate III. No. 1.) A di-drachm.

R.—ROMA in indented letters. Jupiter and Victory in a quadriga.

2. Similar, with the letters in relief. (Plate III. No. 2.)
Smaller than the last.

3. Similar, except the quadriga is to the left. Size of the denarius.

4. O.—Bearded and helmed head of Mars, to the right.

R.—Horse's head bridled to the right, behind a strigil.
Exergue, ROMA.

5. O.—Bearded and helmed head of Mars, to the left.

R.—Horse's head bridled, on a base inscribed ROMANORUM.
behind an ear of barley.

6. O.—Helmed head of the Phrygian Venus to the right, behind a quiver.

R.—ROMANO. Victory standing, placing a wreath on a palm branch.

7. O.—Diademed beardless head of Hercules, and club.

R.—ROMANO. The wolf and twins.

8. O.—ROMANO. Laureated head of Apollo.

R.—A star above a horse galloping.

9. O.—Beardless helmed head of Mars to the right, behind a club.

R.—ROMA. A horse prancing to the right, above a club.

BRASS.

1. O.—Head of Hercules covered with the skin of a lion's head, to the right.

R.—ROMA. A Pegasus galloping, to the right.

2. O.—Turreted head of Cybele, to the right.

R.—ROMA. A horseman galloping, to the right.

3. O.—Laureated head of Apollo, to the right.
R.—ROMANO. A lion prowling, to the right.
4. O.—Helméd head of Mars, to the right.
R.—ROMA. A horse's head bridled, to the right, behind a strigil.
5. O.—Helméd head of Minerva, to the left.
R.—ROMA. A horse's head, to the right.
6. O.—Helméd head of Rome, to the right.
R.—ROMA. The prow of a vessel.
7. O.—Head of Hercules covered with the skin of a lion's head, to the right.
R.—ROMA. A dog running, to the right.
8. O.—Helméd head of the Phrygian Venus, to the right.
R.—ROMA. A dog running, to the right. (A very small piece.)

COINS OF THE MARSIAN LEAGUE.

The social war which broke out in Italy, in 90 B.C., was caused by the Roman Senate refusing the right of citizenship to its Italian allies. A hostile league was formed of all the nations extending from the Arno to the extremity of Italy; it is generally called the Marsian League, from the Marsi, the most powerful people of the confederation. Corfinium, the chief town of the Peligni, was made the headquarters of the allies, when its name was changed to Italia; that name in Oscan or Roman letters appears on most of the coins of the League. After the taking of Corfinium by the Romans, Æsernia, in Samnium, became the capital. In imitation of the Romans, the allies chose two consuls, Quintus Pompeidius Silo, whose name appears on No. 1, and Caius Papius Mutilus, his name appears on Nos. 2 and 3, with the title of Imperator or General, and on Nos. 4 and 5, without the title. After two or three years of hard fighting, the Roman Senate at last granted the rights of citizenship to all Italians, thus finishing a civil war, during which more than 300,000 men, Romans and Italians, perished, the approaching Mithridatic war demanding the united power of the Roman Empire.

All the coins of the League are silver denarii, of similar size and appearance to the Roman; they are mostly of inferior workmanship and rare.

1. O.—ITALIA. Laureated head of a female, to the left.
R.—Q. SILO. A man on his knees leaning against a military standard, holding in his arms a pig, which eight chiefs are touching with their swords.
2. O.—MVTIL. IMPERATOR. (In Oscan letters.) Head of Minerva, to the left.
R.—C. PAAPI. (In Oscan letters.) Two chiefs swearing fidelity, by pointing their swords at a pig, held by a kneeling soldier.
3. O.—MVTILVS. IMPERATOR. (In Oscan letters.) Head of Bacchus encircled with ivy.
R.—C. PAAPI. (In Oscan letters.) A bull devouring an animal of uncertain kind.
4. O.—ITALIA. (In Oscan letters.) Helmed head of Minerva, to the right.
R.—C. PAAPI. (In Oscan letters.) Four chiefs swearing fidelity as before.
5. O.—MVTIL. (In Oscan letters.) Helmed head of Minerva.
R.—C. PAAPI. (In Oscan letters.) The Dioscuri on horseback, proceeding different ways.
6. The same type without the name of the consul, on the reverse ITALIA.
7. A variety of the last has ITALIA in Oscan letters, and the Dioscuri are galloping in company. It is of fine workmanship.
8. O.—ITALIA. (In Oscan letters.) Laureated female head to the left.
R.—A soldier standing, holding a spear and sword, near him an ox laid down, to the right. In the exergue, R.
9. O.—Laureated female head, to the left.
R.—Eight chiefs touching a pig held by a soldier, behind him is a lance placed in the ground. Exergue, XVIII. There are two varieties of this type which are much rarer, one has XVI, and the other III, in the exergue, and are without the lance.

10. O.—Laureated head of female, to the right. X.

R.—ITALIA. A female seated on a pile of arms, her right hand placed on a lance, the left holding the parazonium; behind is a Victory crowning her. In the field, C. A variety has ITALIA and XVI on the obverse, and on the reverse P. in the exergue.

There are also Spanish coins with Celtiberian inscriptions, of the same size and design as the Roman denarius, though of ruder work. They have on them the names of chiefs, and autonomous cities, and do not properly belong to the Roman series.

COINS OF ROMAN FAMILIES,

IN GOLD, SILVER, AND BRASS, OF ALL SIZES.

As the names of several families appear on one coin, the same type is given to each family. The whole number of types are only given of the gold and silver coins, which are generally beautiful works of art; of the brass coins, the As and its divisions only are given, which are usually of rude workmanship, and in type resemble those described at page 6. When several types are named, the degree of rarity is only given of the most common.

ABURIA FAMILY.

Silver...Two types. R 1.

Brass...Triens, Quadrans, Sextans, and Uncia. C.

ACCOLEIA FAMILY.

Silver...One type. R 1.

ACILIA FAMILY.

Silver...Three types. C.

Brass...As, Semis, Triens, and Quadrans. C.

ÆLIA OR ALLIA FAMILY.

Silver...Two types. C.

Brass...Large, Middle, and Small Brass, as moneyers of Augustus.

ÆMILIA FAMILY.

Gold....One type. R 8.

Silver...Sixteen types, two of which are in connection with the Plantia and Scribonia families, three as moneyers of Julius Cæsar, two restored by Trajan, two are Quinarii, one of which is in connection with the Antonia family, and one is a Sestercius. C. Two Denarii of this family are engraved on Plate III. Nos. 3 and 4.

Brass...The As. C.

AFRANIA FAMILY.

Silver...Two types. R 1.

Brass...As, Semis, Triens, and Sextans. R 1.

ALLIENA FAMILY.

Silver...One type, as moneyer of Julius Cæsar. R 6.

ANNIA FAMILY.

Silver...Two types, both in connection with Fabia and Tarquitia families. S.

Brass...Small size, as moneyer of Augustus.

ANTESTIA OR ANTISTIA FAMILY.

Gold....Two types. R 8. As moneyers of Augustus.

Silver...Nine types, three having the name Antestia, five as moneyers of Augustus, and one Quinarius. C.

Brass...As, Semis, Triens, and Quadrans, all with the legend C. ANTESTI.

ANTIA FAMILY.

Silver...Six types, two of which are Quinarii, and two Sestercii. R 2.

ANTONIA FAMILY.

Gold....R 8.

Silver...Twelve types, not including those with the heads of Marcus Antonius or his family, as they are better classed in the Imperial series, nor any of their moneyers which are placed in the families to which they belong—viz., Barbatia, Claudia, Cocceia, Domitia, Gellia Junia, Munatia, Musidia, Sepullia, Turillia, Ventidia, and Vibia families. Four of the types are Quinarii. C.

The legionary coins of Marcus Antonius present an excellent example of the numerous varieties which are found of one type. The following is common to all the legionary coins, viz :—

O.—ANTonius AVGur III VIR. R. P. C. A prætorian galley, and rowers.

R.—LEGio (and the number). Three military standards, the centre one surmounted by the Roman eagle.

The numbers run from II. to XXVI. consecutively, and there is one of the XXX legion. The first legion appears on the coins LEG. PRI.; it is excessively rare; a specimen was sold in the Campana sale, in 1846, for £9 15s. 0d. Dr. Knott had a specimen reading LEG. PMA. The one described by Eckhel, LEG. I., specimens of which are occasionally seen in collections, is one of the common varieties, with part of the number erased, leaving only I. This has been done by some rascal to pass for a genuine coin of the first Legion, and by this means enhance its price. The fourth legion is numbered IIII. and IV.; the ninth, VIIII. and IX.; the fourteenth, XIIII. and XIV.; the eighteenth, XVIII. and XIX.; and the nineteenth, XVIIII. and XIX. As different types yet resembling the preceding are LEG. XII. ANTIQVAE; LEG. XVII. CLASSICAE; LEG. XVIII. LIBVCAE; and CHORTIVM. PRAETORIARVM; the legends of these four appear at the top of the coins, as well as one having CHORTIS. SPECVLATORVM, but this latter has three military standards, differing from all the others. The sixth legion was restored by the Emperors Marcus Aurelius and Lucius Verus, and has on the reverse ANTONINVS. ET. VERVS. AVGVsti RESTITuerunt.

APPULRIA FAMILY.

Brass...As, Triens, Quadrans, and Sextans, having a monogram composed of the letters L.AP. R 1.

AFRONIA FAMILY.

Third Brass...Moneyers of Augustus. C.

AQUILLIA FAMILY.

Gold...Three types. As moneyer of Augustus. R 6.

Silver...Eleven types, nine of them as moneyer of Augustus. R 1.

ARRIA FAMILY.

Gold....One type. R 8.

Silver...Two types. R 6.

ASINIA FAMILY.

Second and Third Brass...Moneyer of Augustus. C.

ATIA FAMILY.

Gold....One type. R 8.

Silver...One type, the same as the Gold. R 8.

O.—Q. LABIENUS PARTHICUS IMP. Bare head of Labienus to the right.

R.—No legend. A horse saddled and bridled.

This extremely rare coin is very interesting, from the circumstance of having on it a contemporary portrait, a very uncommon example in the series of Family coins. Labienus was one of Caesar's lieutenants in Gaul, whom he afterwards deserted, and joined the party of Pompey. After the battle of Pharsalia, he went for assistance to Orodes, King of the Parthians, who made him general of his army, which defeated the Romans. It was at this time the coin was struck, when he assumed the title of PARTHICUS. He was ultimately made prisoner by Ventidius, the general of M. Antonius, B.C. 39.

Middle Brass...R 2.

ATILIA FAMILY.

Silver...Three types. C.

Brass....As, Semis, and Triens, with M. ATILI. R 1.

UNCERTAIN FAMILIES IN SILVER.

Coins without the names of families on them, are placed amongst the uncertain. The following is a description of a portion of them.

O.—Winged helmed head of Rome. X the mark of value for ten Asses.

R.—The Dioscuri on horseback, galloping to the right, stars over their heads. Exergue ROMA.

There are many varieties of this common coin; one has the letters indented; others have the following distinctive mint marks, a pentagon, prow of a ship, spear head, a mallet and helmet, &c.

A quinarius, same as the last, differing in having V the mark of value for five asses, and for varieties of mint marks. One of these has ROM in monogram, which some writers have assigned to Romilia family; as well as a sestercius.

A sertercius also similar, differing in the value H. S., meaning duo asses et semis, or two and a half asses.

O.—Winged helmed head of Rome. X.

R.—Diana in a biga of stags. ROMA.

A variety has Diana in a biga of horses; and another has Victory driving the horses.

O.—Laureated head of Jupiter to the right.

R.—Victory standing before a trophy, to the right. ROMA.

This is called a Victoriatus, and like the preceding is common, and has many varied mint marks. There is also a half Victoriatus of the same type.

O.—Crested helmed head of Minerva X. ROMA.

R.—Rome helmed, seated on bucklers, holding a lance; at her feet the wolf and twins; above, on each side of her, a dove, flying towards her.

There are many ancient imitations of family coins, of barbarous workmanship.

Many family coins have only surnames on them; the following list, copied from Cohen's "Médailles Consulaires," will assist in determining to which families they belong.

JULIA.

Wife of Agrippa. Born B.C. 39; starved to death by her third husband, Tiberius, A.D. 14.

There are no Roman coins having her name and head on them;
except that her head is seen on a denarius of the Maria family.
There are Greek coins of her in large and middle brass.

CAIUS CÆSAR.

Son of Agrippa and Julia. Born B.C. 20; died A.D. 3.

Gold .... R 8.

Silver... One type. R 2.

The silver coin has generally been placed to Augustus, which is as follows:—

O.—CAESAR. Bare head of Caius, very young, to the right.
The whole within a laurel wreath.

R.—AVGVST. A grand candelabra, within a wreath of flowers.

It is rather of coarse workmanship, struck in Asia during the time of his Proconsulship in that part.

TIBERIUS.

Born B.C. 42; adopted by Augustus A.D. 4; invested with the Tribunitian power thirty-eight times, from B.C. 6 to A.D. 37, with an interval of four years—from B.C. 1 to A.D. 3—when that title was not conferred on him. He was murdered A.D. 37.

The coins of Elagabalus bear the same name as those of Caracalla, but they can always be classed to the proper emperor by various distinguishing marks: when the title of BRITANNICUS, or GERMANICUS, is used, they belong to Caracalla; where the crown is radiated and the head bearded, to Caracalla, but where beardless, to Elagabalus; the latter very frequently has a star on the reverse of his coins. The coins of these two emperors which were struck in the East, are, however, not to be distinguished without great uncertainty.

These are placed together from this reign (to the time of Diocletian, when fine silver again appears), as the type, as well as metal, are so very similar. Amongst the billon silver are a number of restored coins, which are supposed to have been struck during this reign. They are found of the following emperors:—Augustus, Vespasianus, Titus, Nerva, Trajan, Hadrianus, Antoninus Pius, Marcus Aurelius, Commodus, Severus, and Alexander.

As there are two emperors of the name of Maximianus, viz., Marcus Aurelius Valerius Maximianus, surnamed Hercules, and Galerius Valerius Maximianus, and the portraits at this period are not to be depended on, the legends only can determine to which emperor they should be placed. All coins bearing the initials of Marcus Aurelius, SENIOR, or INVICTUS, or with the figure or attributes of Hercules, belong to Maximianus Hercules.

Those having GALERIUS or IVNIOR on them, belong to Galerius Maximianus, and it is customary to place those with the title of CAESAR to him, as he had that title thirteen years, whilst his predecessor had it only for one year.

Gold...R 8. (Plate XVIII. No. 5.)

Silver...R 6.

Small Brass...S.

Nearly all the coins of Carausius and his successor, Allectus, were struck in Britain; they are consequently more eagerly collected than the general series, and bring higher prices when they are in fine condition. They are rarer on the Continent than in England.

The exergual letters on the reverses, M. L. and Q. L. are supposed by some to mean MONETA LONDINI and QUÆSTOR LONDINI; and Q. C. to mean QUÆSTOR CAMULODUNI (Colchester). The explanation is ingenious, but is entirely without any proof.

HELENA.

First wife of Constantius Chlorus. She was divorced from him to make way for Theodora. After her son Constantine the Great became emperor, she was invested with the title of Augusta. It was during Constantine's reign that these coins were struck. There seems no doubt that there was only one Helena who had money struck to her honour, though it has been usual to divide them to three different persons of the name, viz. the wife of Constantius Chlorus, the wife of Crispus, and the wife of Julianus II.

CONSTANTINOPOLIS. ROMA. and POPULUS ROMANVS.

There are a large number of Small Brass with the above names personified on the obverse; they are supposed to have been struck about the close of the reign of Constantine the Great, or during the reign of his son Constantius. They are very common, except the POP. ROMANVS, which are of the Quinarius size.

The coins of the Emperor Constantius II., and the Cæsar Constantius Gallus, bear the same name. The following differences in the legend fix the appropriation of many of them; those with the title of AVGVSTVS and FLAVIVS VALERIUS belong exclusively to Constantius II.; whilst those with FLAVIVS CLAVDIVS, IVNIOR, and with a bare head, belong to Constantius Gallus.

There are three emperors of this name. To the first belong all the coins with an old face, as he was 54 years of age at the time of his death. To the second belong those with IVNior, and a younger face, as he died at 21 years of age. To the third belong those with PLAcidius, and with the legends VOT. XXX. MVLT. XXXX., as he reigned almost 30 years.

The coins of the two emperors named Theodosius are difficult to appropriate, some of them impossible. Those with reverses, IMP. XXXX. &c.—TR. P. XXXVII.—VOT. XX.—VOT. XXX.—and VOT. XXXX., belong to the second Theodosius, as he reigned 42 years; whilst his grandfather only reigned 15 years. There is a space of 55 years from the death of the first Theodosius to that of the second; during that period there are some slight changes perceptible on coins.
